

Passive method of high vapor pressure stabilization

Abstract

Methods of passive stabilization and control of relative vapor pressure at nearly saturated conditions. These methods and devices with their use are suitable for short and long term containment of microfluidic systems, live tissues, organs, plants, grocery products. Devices are extremely low cost and versatile.